

PRIEST DEFIES STEEL MAGNATES

Men Being Organized Despite Efforts of Companies to Stop It

By FREDERICK M. KERRY
BRADDOCK, Pa., July 17.—There is one spot in one town in the "steel barony" of Pennsylvania where men are still being organized into unions, in spite of all the efforts of the steel companies to stop it.

It is in the basement of Father Alexander Kaczmarek's parish house in the Roman Catholic church of St. Michael's here in Braddock.

Out on the front lawn of Father Kaczmarek's church stands this sign, recently erected:

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH
FAVORS
UNION LABOR PRINCIPLES.

Apply at Union Headquarters, 312
Braddock Avenue.

Steel Trust Earnings, 1919,
$649,150,000.

HOW MUCH DID YOU EARN?

In spite of the threats, pressure and entreaties, Father Kaczmarek continues to stand by the "Reconciliation Program" of the National Catholic War Council, which declares in favor of the right of the workers to organize.

He says he relies also upon the encyclical of Pope Leo XIII, "On the Condition of Labor," in which the Pope recommended the formation of labor unions.

Before the great steel strike, open air meetings had been permitted in Braddock. In September the sheriff of Allegheny county denied the right to meet.

Indoor meetings were prohibited. The only place in Braddock where the steel strikers could gather was in Father Kaczmarek's church to hear his sermons.

He told the workers they had a right to organize, he urged them to stand fast, and today he is still urging the necessity and the right of organization so that they may be ready for the next struggle with the steel companies.

When the men went out this priest with his 599 families became the backbone of the strike in Braddock. Messages came to him, in roundabout ways, that if he continued his course once the strike was broken, no man in his congregation would get employment in the steel mills.

The Father sent back word that if that happened he would take his 599 families and they would move west together and settle upon the land.

There was a mortgage on his church and suddenly steps were taken to foreclose it. Father Kaczmarek called a meeting of his parish and the amount of the mortgage was raised.

The strike was lost, and Father Kaczmarek's parishioners went back to the mills, but today the Reverend Father is busy telling them why it was lost, urging more and better organization, and out on the front lawn stands his defiance to the mill masters of Braddock.

WOMAN NUDE IN FIGHT FOR MAN

Douglas Concludes That the "Shameless Sex" Is a Good Name

Written for International News Service
BY JAMES DOUGLAS
Editor of the Sunday Express.

LONDON, July 17.—What is the meaning of the riot of nudities into which the world of womanhood has plunged so frantically? Here I touch a very dangerous subject—woman.

The voice of the jazz dance is one of the most dangerous of the modern world—shortage of males. The strange herd-son of woman, moving in the mass, has taken fright at the sentence of celibacy which has been passed upon her. There are not enough men to go round. Before the war the rivalry of women was acute. Today it is frenzied. Instinctively the herd-son of woman is doubling its allurements, trebling its wiles, quadrupling its baits.

DESCRIBE SYMPTOMS.

It has cast modesty to the winds. It has abandoned all its reserves and reticences. All is fair in love and war, and the hard-son of woman is resorting to the most audacious devices in order to captivate and capture the surviving males.

The vogue of the jazz dance is one symptom of this frenzy. The violent outbursts of vehement colors in feminine raiment is another. The hysterical eccentricity of feminine attire is another. But the most alarming symptom is the absolutely brazen display of feminine charms. I have always thought that woman was the shameless sex, but now I know it. In pure—or impure—effrontery women today are the equals of the superiors of the women of any epoch.

The growth of feminine shamelessness has been so gradual that we hardly become aware of it. We can hardly remember the days before the war when decency was still practiced in the public theatre and the public restaurant by respectable women. It is almost to recall the era of the veiled maid.

But the climax in effrontery is the vogue of the bare neck. The other night at a theatre the bare backs in the stalls suggested that the stage had ceased to compete with society. A man said to me that he felt inclined to go to the theatre in future armed with a rubber stamp. Before him sat a lady with nothing on her back, which was enameled with some pink liquid. "I should like," he said, "to brand her to red with the words 'wet point'."

It is not pleasing to see a matron of forty or fifty summers with dyed hair, rouged lips, painted cheeks, blackened eyelids and eyelashes, brandishing her adipose back at a disgusted crowd.

FAULTS OF YOUNG.

Worse still is the abominable manner in which the young girl who aspires to be a model, imitates the manners, if not the morals, of the courtesan. The age of childhood seems to have passed. Girls are grown up at twelve, bloom at thirteen, heartiness at fourteen, and are ready to fling cynicism at sixteen, and sour at seventeen.

It is the fault of the mothers. They no longer guide and restrain the pleasure-loving girl. They allow her to rub off the bloom of youth in dubious resorts with doubtful companions.

And the tide of corruption flows more and more strongly every day. The decadent and degenerate poisons of Paris infect our fashions. Some of the Paris theatres are now unfit to be described. Outrages upon taste and propriety are permitted which are incredible. Wit has been slain by vulgarity. No newspaper—not even a French newspaper—would dare to describe the things which are done on the Paris stage.

The remedy is in the lash of public opinion. It ought to be applied without delay.

CHICAGO, July 17.—For a year Mrs. Margaret Emerson, of Chicago, separated from her husband and beset by poverty, had been harried by the fear that her three little children would become paupers.

"I'd rather see them dead than to get nothing out of the world," she told her brother, Timothy Hanrahan, who lived with her in the home of their aged parents and helped support their children.

John Hanrahan, grandfather of the children, was awakened by moans. He found Mrs. Emerson lying dead across her bed. In the bathroom Thomas, aged eight, and Richard, aged three, were dead and in another room lay Margaret, two years old, severely slashed. She died a few hours later.

GREAT ENDS SCORNE BY GERMANS

Spirit of Republicanism Dies;
Caste and Class Win in Reichstag

BY FRANK E. MASON.
Staff Correspondent International News Service.

BERLIN, July 17.—"The spirit of republicanism is dying in Germany." Caste and class triumphed; the ideal of equality and democracy were defeated at the reichstag elections. Messrs. Barer, Baker, Banker and Bootblack went to the polls and registered their protest against patterning the German government after the principles and ideals of the United States republic.

Germany's vote for parties, not for candidates, the party's victory or defeat is purely a matter of the people's approval or disapproval of its platform.

The reichstag election may be compared to three salesmen attempting to create a desire to sell their system of government to the voters. The governments on trial were the United States, English and Russian. The United States republican ideals of democracy, liberty and the rule of law, and the class dictatorship of Russia won.

The reactionary national and People's parties, from whose ranks were recruited the Reich revolutionaries, wish to see the return of a monarchy patterned on English lines. With it would come the British parliamentary system. The hierarchy of nobility would again be officially recognized, as in England. The nationalists feel the need of a king in their German blood. The People's party is not actuated so much by sentimental notions of royalty as by the desire for a stable government to protect the "big interests." The British system best answers this purpose.

OPPOSED TO CASTE.

The German democrats' ideas on government most closely resemble the manly party approach of an American. He is opposed to caste or class distinctions. He believes in representation and majority rule in a republican government. Many of the democratic leaders have made extended visits to America and have a keen appreciation of American politics. The other two parties in the old coalition, the Catholic Centrum, and the Majority Socialists have much in common with Americans in their point of view.

The Independent Socialists, with their program of revolutionary socialism, in every industry electing a supreme soviet, or "rat," their slogan, "Dictatorship of the Proletariat" and "Killed die Weltrevolution," are disciples of the Russians.

The Independents call democracy an antiquated notion, as much out of fashion as despotism, and preach class prejudice. Freedom is not cloaked in their platform; they would have a dictatorship which would regulate and order the lives of classes in matters now considered the individual's personal liberty.

FOR CLASS RULE.

Nearly five million Germans voted for class rule, if that class be the workers, making the Independent Socialists the second strongest party in the reichstag. According to the official figures, received by the Reichstag, the Independent Socialists secured 3,955,317 votes, compared with 2,817,256 in 1919. The Majority Socialists, who in 1919 received 2,202,344 when the ballots were counted, secured 3,506,318. The republican party also gained, with 3,121,475 a year ago, they now polled 3,735,778.

Certainly the inability of the old coalition to hold its own with the electorate or to greatly improve conditions at home has disgusted the voter and he has decided to try something else. His choice has led him away from republicanism and democracy which he believes has failed. He now wants to give Germany to a monarchy or to Bolshevism.

'DEAD' SEVENTEEN YEARS.
HE WRITES TO 'WIDOW'

TOKYO, July 17.—A letter has been received from a man reported killed in the Russo-Japanese war in North Manchuria by his supposed widow, who has been married to a second husband for nearly ten years.

A sergeant named Jinkichi Onishi has been missing since the battle of the Tannu of the noider conclusion that he had been killed in the field, and funeral ceremonies were observed.

His "widow" subsequently married again, two children being born by the second husband. Now, nearly 17 years since the "death" of her first husband was reported, he writes reporting himself safe in a hospital in Petrograd.

According to his letter, at the time of the Russo-Japanese war, he was taken prisoner and has ever since been imprisoned in a dungeon, which he never allowed to be opened until, after 17 years confinement, he fell ill and was removed to a hospital in Petrograd.

OPERATES ON HUMAN BRAIN WITH SUCCESS

Johns Hopkins Doctor Solves
Problem That Has Baffled
Men of Science

BY GEORGE B. WATERS.
N. E. A. Staff Correspondent.

BALTIMORE, Md.—Dr. Walter E. Dandy, young surgeon of Johns Hopkins Hospital, has planted the flag of American achievement in the center of the human brain.

The brain, center of human activity and the most delicate and sensitive organ of the body, has presented science with the most baffling problems in the past. Ordinary brain operations have been made simple but to reach the very center of the mass, the Third Ventricle, without killing the patient, was impossible until Dr. Dandy, after three years' experiment on lower animals—monkeys mostly—found the way.

REMOVAL OF CURSE

It means that epileptics can be cured and that many an insane man can be brought back from the asylum. It means that paralysis can be given the use of their bodies.

These ills are often the cause of brain tumors or "split." Dr. Dandy lays open the way for their removal, or cure.

He has successfully operated upon the brains of men and recently removed a tumor from the Third Ventricle, restored the speech of a dumb man.

The operation is made in three stages, so that the patient will not be killed by the sudden shock of laying bare the twists and turns of his "gray matter."

SKULL IS OPENED

First the skull must be opened. The bone is bored through with "trepanning" instruments and then the "water" in which the brain rests, is withdrawn to release the pressure that might damage the brain. It is a delicate job to the "ligate" the blood vessels to prevent hemorrhage, or undue bleeding.

The second stage finds the surgeon's knife through the "corpus callosum" or "large body" which connects the two parts of the brain. That in itself is a difficult task.

The third and final operation is the exposing of the Third Ventricle and the removal of the obstructive tumor.

HOLES BORED IN SKULL

The great obstacle to the operation in the past was the treatment of the brain, accustomed to rest in its fluid, when that fluid was withdrawn. The slightest damage resulted in paralysis or death of the patient.

Dr. Dandy solved the problem by boring one or more holes in the base of the skull through which purified air is pumped into the brain channels.

LET AGED MEN REMAIN AT WORK

Compulsory Retirement of Federal Employees at 65
Opposed by Wilson

WASHINGTON, July 17.—President Wilson is strongly opposed to the retirement law, of civil service employees who have reached the age of 65, but who are in good physical condition and desire to continue at work.

Secretary Tamm said today the president had told members of his cabinet of his desire that they place a uniform interpretation on the measure, which becomes effective July 22 and which some cabinet officers have construed to provide arbitrarily for retirement of employees at the age of 65.

It was announced at the postoffice today that bureau chiefs and postmasters had been directed to place before the postmaster-general all applications of supernumeraries for continuation in office with such recommendations as they cared to make.

windward. The breeze gave her such a life that she stood for the mark but although Shamrock was scarcely a biscuit toss away, it passed over her entirely and left her practically becalmed. Resolute nearly fetched the mark on that starboard tack and wore around it with another hitch going quite fast. A mile away Shamrock lay flapping helpless in the long swell.

SHIPS LIKE HORSE

Five times Burton sought to coax the green yacht up to the mark and each time she shied like a horse at a hurdle. In the sixth try she reached it nearly half an hour after Resolute.

The second leg was planned to be a reach, but Resolute finally turned into the second beat of the day.

The time limit expired at 7:45 daylight time and at 7 o'clock Resolute reached the second mark with ten miles to go in forty-five minutes. She sailed a few miles under balloon jib top sail and then signalled for a tow line and started for her moorings in the Sandy Hook horseshoe.

Shamrock reached the mark half an hour later and her tug immediately took her in tow. The yacht will meet again on Tuesday over another triangular course.

the world a government of and for the people under which liberty has been realized.

SHEER PARTISANSHIP

"Many people, however, have opposed the covenant out of sheer partisanship, have turned to destroy it because of politics, so we have had a great battle. The president has been denounced by some because of his continuing love of peace and the love of the welfare of humanity. There never has been a man who has done more to help the laboring classes and the down-trodden people of the world as President Wilson, who has sought not only political liberty, but from the evils of war which the human family have been subjected in all ages.

"The only criticism that the radical Democrats have to offer is that the president went beyond the confines of his own party and selected men of all political affiliations in shaping his cabinet. He felt he was president of the United States and must work for the welfare of the people and not of any party or class. This shall be said when impartial history is written of President Wilson and it will be found in the latest generation of history of men.

"Until we have a League of Nations functioning and a means of settling controversy, the world will be burdened with armies and navies until civilization will bend and I fear will be destroyed under the terrific pressure. European nations are now compelled to maintain huge armies and military defenses and unless there shall be a league devoted to peace to get the nations out from under this stupendous burden and industrial and economic chaos must surely come.

CHOICE OF UTAHS

"No one date overlooks or disguises these burning paramount issues and I know the people of Utah will declare for peace and not for war and its horrors.

Going down to the coming election I have something hot and brief to tell you. Some have said that you can beat Harding. But we are going to carry the state of Utah this year. We want the other parties to know that we are not going around pussy-footing, but with courage and confidence. We want every man to know that we are not going to bow before him and Utah will go for Cox by 15,000 majority. All that is necessary is that you Democrats get out and present the issues and there will be no doubt as to victory.

"After a short visit in the east where I will meet and tell Cox what I have said here, I am coming back to Utah and stay here until the polls close. Now is the time to get ready for the coming fray and we face it with full courage for there are no cowards in our party."
